

Editor's noteDear colleagues!

We are pleased to present the new issue of the Russian Electronic Journal of Radiology (Vol. 16, No. 1, 2026).

REJR traditionally features scientific articles reflecting current developments in radiological diagnostics. We present the results of original research, scientific reviews, and interesting clinical cases.

We remind you that all materials are published free of charge. Our authors include specialists from many regions of our country, as well as international colleagues. We kindly ask authors to carefully review the article requirements and accompanying documents, which will significantly reduce the review time. The REJR editorial board strictly adheres to a policy aimed at following all principles of publishing ethics, the norms and rules of which are adopted by leading international scientific publishers.

We thank all authors for the productive collaboration with the journal, the feedback, and the support of our readers!

Enjoy reading!

Editor-in-chief

A handwritten signature in black ink, which appears to read 'N. Serova'.

Natalya Serova